

Families Against Narcotics

Your connection for information, resources, and support.

Overdoses killed more people last year than guns or car accidents, and are doing so at a pace faster than the H.I.V. epidemic at its peak. In 2015, roughly 2 percent of deaths — one in 50 — in the United States were drug-related, and the numbers are increasing. The chances are very good that you know someone, either an addict or a family member of an addict, that is struggling with this disease and its after effects.
